

Emory University Pre-departure Training

Welcome

Welcome

- ✦ This training is a collaborative effort of Rollins School of Public Health, Emory Global Health Initiatives and Emory Global Strategy and Initiatives.

- ✦ Highlights:
 - Small group discussions
 - Guest speakers
 - Travel logistics
 - Safety
 - Sustaining Well-being
 - Cultural Humility
 - Ethics of Photography and Ethics of Fieldwork
 - Lunch discussion groups by region

Resource Slides Online

- ✦ Following this training you will find many resource slides posted online
 - ✦ Personal Safety and Security Awareness
 - ✦ Sexual Harassment, Assault and Violence
 - ✦ Travel Policies and ISOS
 - ✦ Physical and Emotional Health
 - ✦ Student Health Services Travel Consult Information
 - ✦ Mental Health and Emotional Resilience
 - ✦ Other guest presentations from today

Expectations

For your safety and to maintain Emory's relationships with global partners:

Students should:

- ✦ Follow the laws, rules and regulations of the country
- ✦ Respect the political and cultural rules and regulations of the partner and community
- ✦ Wear contextually and culturally appropriate clothing
- ✦ Show up in your capacity as an Emory student; however, you do not speak for the university

Pre-reading Discussion

Motivations for global health practice:

What motivations do we want to suppress?

- Neo-colonialism “we know better”
- Wanting to travel on Emory’s “dime”
- Desire to leave, run away
- Frustrated with inability to effect change locally

What motivations do we want to tolerate?

- Resume building
- Becoming a better researcher by being in the setting/self-serving
- Professional skill building (at who’s expense?)
- Feeling connected to another place/context (who do we speak for?)
- Wanting to go home

What motivations do we aspire to?